Vindow Helps Find Long-Term Accommodation for Workers Rebuilding Florida in the Aftermath of Hurricane Ian

Vindow is offering the use of their procurement platform for free, plus no-cost management support, to make it easier to secure long-term housing for the crews who are rebuilding local infrastructure

October 12, 2022 – Miami, FL – Vindow Inc. – the cloud-based travel technology platform that brings buyers and sellers of contracted accommodations together to facilitate a more effective RFP and contracting process – is heartbroken over the devastation caused by Hurricane Ian on the west coast of Florida. As a Miami-based company, Vindow is supporting their neighbors by giving construction, infrastructure and utility crews, and insurance agents, free access to Vindow’s group and long-term hotel RFP platform to quickly book long-term accommodation for all the workers who are rebuilding the infrastructure in affected cities, as well as personal management support to make the process of booking accommodations for team members completely hands-free.

Vindow is the only cloud-based, SaaS platform that combines a centralized, full lifecycle management of the procurement process – from RFP generation through contract management – with AI-powered, intelligent market analytics. The solution gives construction, infrastructure and utility crews, and insurance agents, who are dealing with the aftermath of Hurricane Ian, a much quicker way to secure local long-term accommodation for their teams or claimants, at the best possible price.

“At Vindow, we strongly believe in giving back to our local communities,” said Ken Shanley, Co-Founder of Vindow. “When we saw the devastation caused by Hurricane Ian, right in our own backyard, we knew that it was important for us to contribute to the ongoing efforts to rebuild our cities. By giving free access to our platform, companies can secure the best and most cost-effective long-term accommodation for their employees, and by offering no-cost management support for the entire sourcing process, we give the crews the freedom to focus on what they do best: helping to rebuild Floridians’ lives.”

“As a mother of two, it is heartbreaking for me to see how families have been impacted by Hurricane Ian,” said Andrea Coronel Shanley, Co-Founder of Vindow Inc. “As Floridians, we are called upon to support efforts to rebuild our communities; Vindow is proud to be able to offer our resources to help in any way we can.”

Florida-based construction, infrastructure and utility crews and insurance agents can obtain free access to Vindow’s platform and/or access the complimentary long-term accommodation management support by contacting Ken Shanley at info@vindow.com.
